

Anna Szajkowska is a policy officer at the European Commission, Environment Directorate-General, Agriculture, Forests & Soil Unit. She studied law at Warsaw University in Poland. Before joining the European Commission in 2012, she was a researcher at the Law and Governance Group at Wageningen University in the Netherlands, where she also obtained her PhD with a thesis entitled 'Regulating food law. Risk analysis and the precautionary principle as general principles of EU food law'. In 2005 she was awarded an academic scholarship from the Italian National Research Council. Her research interests include risk regulation, EU law, food law, environmental law, relation between EU law and national legal systems, and international trade law. She teaches risk regulation, food law, EU law, and MBA programmes on international trade law.